SITUATION SUMMARY

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

Weather of Concern

- No significant Weather Watches or Warnings are in effect.

Active Weather Warnings, Watches and Advisories by County:

http://www.wrh.noaa.gov/sto/brief/www_bc_cal.php

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

Showers and thunderstorms will continue across the northwest California interior through the weekend due to a few disturbances. Activity will subside on Monday as high pressure begins to build back over the eastern Pacific.

Medford Weather:

A series of weak upper level disturbances will continue to support isolated to scattered shower and thunderstorm activity through Monday. A more typical summer pattern will set up Monday night into Tuesday as a thermal trough strengthens near the coast

Reno Weather:

Drier southwest flow aloft this weekend will bring decreasing thunderstorm coverage and slowly warming temperatures. Dry weather is expected next week with temperatures warming to around average by Tuesday or Wednesday.

San Francisco Weather:

An upper level trough over the west coast will keep temperatures below normal across inland areas through early next week. A gradual warming trend...along with dry weather conditions can then be expected for the latter half of the upcoming week.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

Unseasonably cool temperatures continue through the weekend with drier weather though a few northern mountain showers or thunderstorms are possible through Sunday. Dry and gradually warmer conditions will arrive next week.

Hanford Weather:

Low pressure will linger for one more day keeping the threat of afternoon thunderstorms in the Sierra. A dry southwest flow will then prevail bringing a warming trend and dry conditions.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

A warming trend will continue through much of next week as onshore flow weakens beneath an upper-level high pressure system expanding westward. Persistent night through morning low clouds and fog are expected along the coast, extending locally into the valleys.

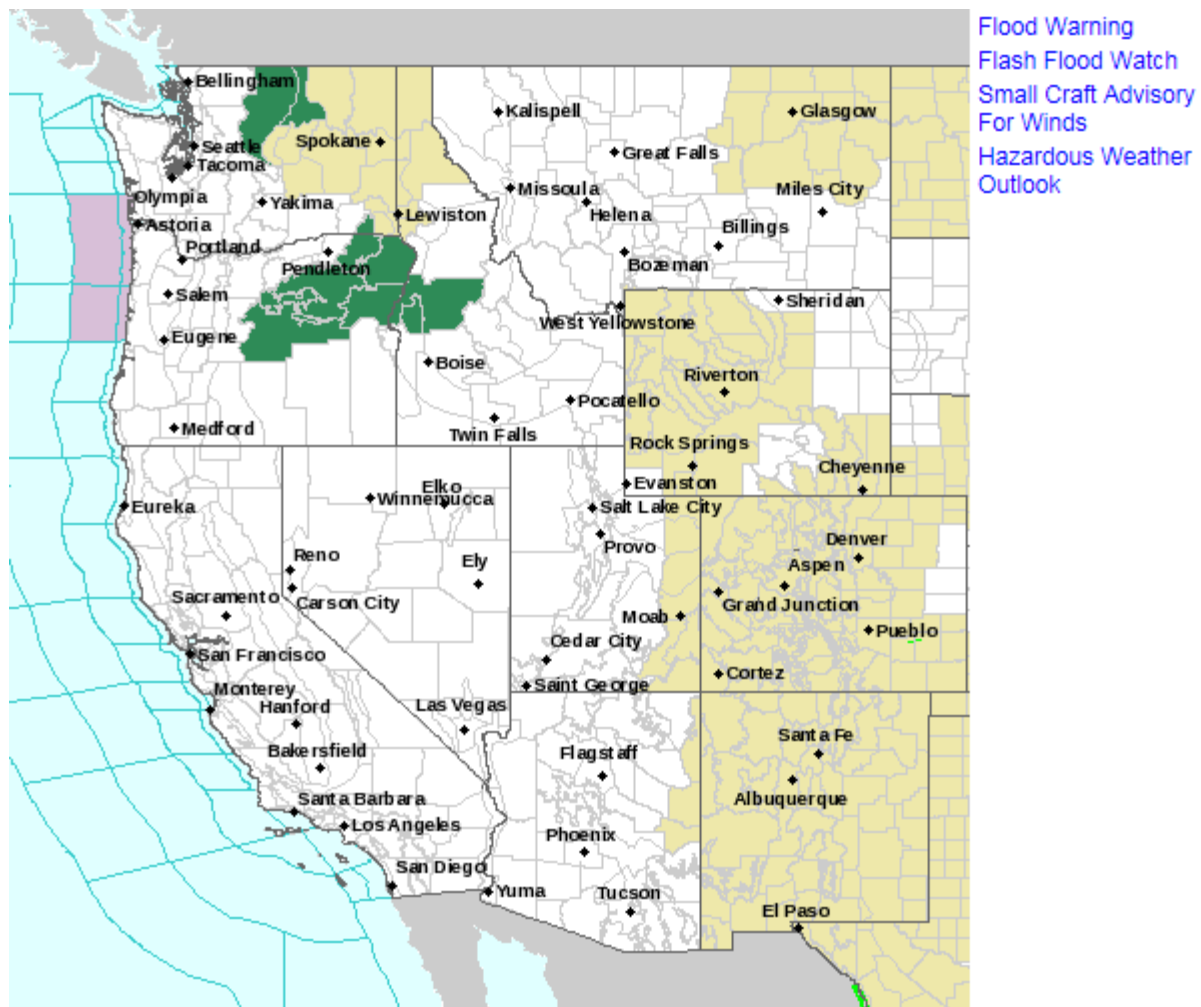

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

The trough of low pressure near the California coast will slowly weaken through Sunday allowing for slow inland warming and a gradually shallower marine layer with night and morning coastal low clouds and fog not extending as far inland. Minor day to day changes are then expected for much of next week. For late in the week into next weekend, high pressure to the east may expand slightly westward bringing slow inland warming and a shallower marine layer.

Southeast California Weather:

Little change in the weather pattern is forecast the next several days. Dry weather with near normal temperatures are expected in southeast California.
